

Priority Three

Infrastructure & Neighborhood Services

"The condition of our streets, sidewalks, parks, and neighborhoods reflects the pride we have in our community."

Why This Matters

Every resident deserves to live in a city that is clean, safe, attractive, and well-maintained.

Infrastructure is more than asphalt and concrete. It is the foundation of everyday life. It is the road you drive to work, the sidewalk your children walk to school, the streetlight that helps keep your neighborhood safe, the trees that provide shade on a summer afternoon, and the parks where families gather to create lasting memories.

Unfortunately, infrastructure is often taken for granted until something breaks.

Potholes become larger.

Sidewalks become hazardous.

Streetlights stop working.

Trees become neglected.

Storm drains clog.

Repairs become more expensive because maintenance was delayed.

Good leadership means planning ahead and not simply reacting after problems have grown worse.

Throughout my career, I have learned that successful organizations don't wait for problems to become emergencies. They use data, long-term planning, and preventive maintenance to protect their investments and serve people more effectively.

City government should operate the same way.

By making smart infrastructure investments today, we can improve safety, reduce long-term costs, protect property values, strengthen our neighborhoods, and enhance the quality of life for every resident.

As Your Councilmember, I Will Advocate For:

Safer Streets & Sidewalks

- Prioritize repairing roads using objective engineering assessments and pavement condition data.
- Improve sidewalks to increase accessibility and pedestrian safety.
- Address trip hazards that impact seniors, families, and individuals with disabilities.
- Develop long-term pavement management plans that reduce future repair costs.

Neighborhood Beautification

- Improve landscaping throughout the City.
- Maintain healthy trees and expand our urban forest where appropriate.
- Increase efforts to address graffiti quickly and consistently.

- Improve neighborhood appearance through ongoing beautification initiatives.
- Support programs that encourage neighborhood pride and community involvement.

Reliable Public Infrastructure

- Modernize aging public facilities when necessary.
- Improve street lighting to enhance safety.
- Maintain storm drains to reduce flooding risks.
- Upgrade traffic signals and improve traffic flow where practical.
- Continue investing in public buildings that serve residents efficiently.

Smart Long-Term Planning

- Use data and engineering assessments to prioritize infrastructure projects.
- Emphasize preventive maintenance rather than waiting for infrastructure to fail.
- Coordinate projects to minimize disruption to residents and businesses.
- Pursue state and federal grant opportunities whenever possible to reduce costs to local taxpayers.
- Develop long-range Capital Improvement Plans that reflect the City's future needs.

Restoring Common Sense to Neighborhood Services

"City services should make life easier for residents—not more difficult."

City government exists to serve the people.

Programs should improve neighborhoods while remaining practical, efficient, transparent, and responsive to the residents they affect.

When significant changes are proposed, residents deserve meaningful opportunities to provide input before decisions are finalized—not after implementation.

Good government listens.

Good government evaluates.

Good government adjusts when necessary.

The Street Sweeping Program

One issue I consistently hear from residents is frustration regarding West Covina's current street sweeping program.

Many residents feel the program created confusion, unnecessary inconvenience, and additional burdens on working families.

Regardless of how we arrived here, I believe residents deserve leadership that is willing to listen, evaluate results honestly, and make improvements when programs are not meeting community expectations.

Government should never be afraid to ask:

"Is this working?"

If the answer is no, leaders have a responsibility to make changes.

As Your Councilmember, I Will Work To:

Improve City Services

- Conduct a comprehensive evaluation of the current street sweeping program.
- Review data to determine whether the program is meeting its intended goals.
- Listen carefully to resident experiences and concerns.
- Identify practical improvements that better balance neighborhood cleanliness with the needs of residents.
- Improve communication whenever City services or schedules change.
- Ensure future citywide programs include meaningful public outreach before implementation.

Build Trust Through Better Decision-Making

- Encourage greater transparency when significant operational changes are proposed.
- Utilize pilot programs when appropriate before implementing citywide initiatives.
- Measure outcomes and publicly report results.
- Adjust programs based on measurable performance and resident feedback.
- Focus on continuous improvement rather than defending ineffective processes.

Investing in the Future

Infrastructure is not simply about repairing what is broken.

It is about building a city that future generations will inherit with pride.

The decisions we make today will shape West Covina for decades to come.

That is why I believe every infrastructure project should be guided by three simple principles:

- Plan wisely.
- Invest responsibly.
- Maintain proactively.

By protecting the City's infrastructure today, we protect our neighborhoods, strengthen property values, improve public safety, and ensure that taxpayer dollars are spent wisely for generations to come.

My Commitment

Residents deserve more than temporary fixes.

They deserve thoughtful planning.

They deserve reliable city services.

They deserve leadership that values prevention over reaction and long-term stewardship over short-term politics.

As your Councilmember, I will work to ensure that West Covina's infrastructure reflects the pride, character, and potential of the people who call this community home.

Strong neighborhoods are built one street, one park, one sidewalk, and one thoughtful decision at a time.

Looking Ahead

Infrastructure builds the physical foundation of a community.

But great cities are built for people.

The next priority focuses on the places where families gather, children play, friendships are formed, and lifelong memories are created.

It is about investing in our parks, recreation programs, healthy families, and opportunities for every generation.

That begins with Priority Four: Parks, Recreation & Healthy Families.
